Swim Pool For Third Program

At a citizens' meeting called Wednesday night by Mrs. Ann Uzzell to discuss finances for the Third Summer Recreation Program, the school district was asked to sponsor the project so that formalities could be smoothed out and it would be possible to accept Mrs. Grace Howden's offer to donate the use of her swimming pool to the program.

The board is to gather at a special meeting Monday when it is expected that the members will agree to the request. Financing is to be accomplished through contributions from the P. T. A., the City Council and donations from individual citizens (see Editor's Column for details.)

Though the swimming pool will not be ready for use by the children for a week or so, the program itself gets under way Monday on the following schedule:

Over 350 Entries For Kennel Club Dog Show Sunday

By ELLEN BROWN

Much interest is being shown in the forthcoming Dog Show, the first in two years. It is to be held at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, Sunday, June 25. Entries run well over 350.

This is an opportunity for so many people, army and navy included, now on the Peninsula to see one of our famous dog shows which are always "tops."

The U. S. Navy is sending a group of dogs from Mare Island to show what Navy trained dogs can do, which will be well worth seeing. Mrs. Carl Schulez and a group of Carmel Valley women are serving sandwiches from the Sandwich Bench.

The dog show this year not only promises to be a good one, but is for a good cause as well. Net profits are to be donated to the Carmel Chapter of the Red Cross.

Among the late entrants are dogs belonging to Miss Beatruce

Rec. Program out of Orphan Annie Class—Next Year, Maybe.

It is ardently hoped that this year will be the last that the Carmel Summer Recreation Program will be financed by such a willy-nilly method as passing around the hat.

Action in the right direction started Wednesday night when the group of citizens, meeting at Sunset to work out ways and means of supporting this summer's program, asked the School Board to sponsor it officially as an activity of the School District with the idea a method be worked out so that it can be set up as a permanent project, financed jointly by the School District and the City. For this season, however, all the committee is asking is that the School Board sponsor the program—no financial obligations implied other than those incumbent in the matter of insurance—and at a meeting to be called Monday by the board it is assumed that the members will comply with the request, as a majority of the school trustees were present at the citizen meeting Wednesday night and seemed receptive to the idea.

As for financing the program this year, the P. T. A. has $100 on hand earmarked for the purpose. The city has for the past two years contributed around $250 and can be expected to contribute as much this year. The rest, to make up a total of about $700 will have to be raised by voluntary contribution of Carmel citizens—by passing the hat. Anyone wishing to contribute should send his check to the Secretary of the Business Association, Mrs. Barbara Norberg, Box 1147. In this way, citizens as a whole will have a chance to participate and it is hoped that they will avail themselves of the opportunity. The business people, as always, will be canvassed to contribute, and as always, will contribute cheerfully, but since this is a program that benefits all the citizens of the town, as a matter of ethics it should be financed by all the citizens of the town, and not largely by Ocean Avenue and Dolores St. The equitable and efficient way, of course, is that the school district

Navy To Rescue! Jelich And Fraties Get Continuances

A just-under-the-wire acceptance by the Navy of Police Officer Edward M. Jelich's application to enter the service coming through Monday, the day before that set for the trial of Mrs. Eleanor Horne's civil suit against him, placed the suit in the indefinitely postponed class.

Monday his attorneys, Bradin and Harrington, moved for and obtained a continuance in Judge H. G. Jorgensen's court. Continued also, on the grounds that his material witness, Jelich, is now unavailable, is Mrs. Horne's suit against Chief of Police Roy Fraties of

Chinese Soldier Artist, Showing For First Time At Carmel Gallery, Excels In Handling Compositional Problems

By PATRICIA CUNNINGHAM

The Carmel Art Association has hung a new show at the art gallery. It is the regular bi-monthly water color exhibit and follows the showing of oil paintings and sketches by the members of the Carmel Art Institute.

A stranger to the gallery will be interested in all the works shown, because they are great examples of the characteristic works of each artist. Those familar with Art Association members' work will, however, be especially interested in the paintings of a new member, a Chinese soldier artist, Seong Moy. His four paintings are brilliantly composed in the best traditions of modern design. They sparkle with life and action. Representing boat and wharf scenes, he uses shapes and objects to construct a moving and plastic formal pattern. So you have all the visual delight of a perfectly satisfying design organization as well as the expressive and colorful subject matter.

It is a deep pleasure to one aware of techniques to perceive his knowledge and handling of compositional problems.

The mechanics of third dimensional construction, the plasticity of negative and positive, space, opposing tensions and directions are all beautifully mastered and interpreted in these little paintings. He manages to depict space and distance, the same time maintaining the integrity of the picture plane. To the layman this might not mean much, but the technical critic can give no higher praise. Of course, each artist is an individual. It may be that a combination of water color and gauche just suits Moy's aptitudes and temperament. He might not reach the same excellence in oil or tempera, and using other subject matter. Maybe he cannot compose figures. But all we can judge by is what we see, and it has to be admited that he has all the earmarks of a ranking artist. To enjoy a Moy is to be obsessed with the desire to have one.

As the visitor strolls leisurely through the gallery, he first comes upon two pastel and crayon sketches of Charlotte Morgan and a small Heath. Their charm could brighten many corners of a household. Next comes Bill Irwin's Vin-

Dear Madam:

When I was a "high and mighty" senior at Carmel Hi, a member of the 36 (as I recall) elite, a number of us including the "lowly frosh" were talking about a place to knock about in our spare time. Any shack, we agreed, would do the trick providing it had a floor that would stand up under the beating it would have to take from dancing feet. I say any floor, for at that time the shoe leather that might have been worn out was never given any consideration. We'd slap in a juke-box, a "coke" machine, something to sit on and we'd be ready to raise hell in one form or another. A mild drive toward this end was started and the chief argument we had in our favor was that such a "jive dive" would keep us off the streets (where we usually were) and out of the bars (where we couldn't have gone if we'd wanted to, a fact which several of us confirmed after a few futile attempts). Such a place would be of particular value during vacation time, for we would have a better opportunity of meeting kids our own age vacationing from points north and south, and maybe even from Salinas. (A Salinas girl at that time was one to be dangled before the fellows as a prize supreme, as was a "Pally" fellow among the members of the opposite sex).

But somehow or other, for want of organization or maybe the lack of social pressure, such an idea fell short of reality. I have just learned from my sister, Janet, that the "lowly frosh" when I was at CHS, along with the present student body who were not even considered as existing, have now put into effect what I considered then, and more than ever consider now, a most worth while dream of Carmel youths. I'd willingly give up all the pubs in England, with their fast depreciating barrels of Mild and Bitter and their practically non-existing Scotch for a bottle of American-made "coke" and a dance with one of the good-looking Carmel girls, who in my prejudiced opinion rate far above the many attractive products of this country which is temporarily my "home."

In time of peace and more especially in time of war, when the pace of living is speeded up to its highest point, the need for a "Teen Age Club" cannot be under-estimated. Dancing is the favorite nocturnal pastime of the Carmel gang, has been as long as I can

Goodman Is Praised For Rescue

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Goodman of Carmel received notification last Monday that their son, Pfc. Cleo Goodman, who has seen active duty for the past year in the South Pacific with the 415th Engineers Depot Company of the U. S. Army, was officially commended, along with three other enlisted men, for praiseworthy conduct during an incident that occurred on the night of May 27.

Pfc. Goodman, who celebrated his 20th birthday recently in New Caledonia, entered the army on January 25, 1943, following his graduation from Santa Cruz high school. His elder brother, Alfred Goodman, is at present stationed in Loredo, Texas, as a turret gunner in one of the new super- bombers. His sister, Mrs. Thomas Semmons, makes her home in Santa Cruz.

The commendation reads as follows:

"1. On Saturday night, 27 May 1944, at approximately 2345, Sgt. Walter H. Wiley was notified by a Navy Officer of a serious accident on the highway between Mickey's Cafe and Mickey's private road, on Colonial Route No. 1, of a New Zealand truck carrying a native New Caledonian. The truck had turned over into the ditch by the side of the road. It was after working hours, and the men, with the exception of Sgt. Wiley, were in the Mess Hall. Sgt. Wiley notified the men, T/5 Leonard D. Yudin, Pfc. Cleo L. Goodman, Pfc. Franklin S. Akin, and Pcf. Russell S. Davison, and they immediately left their meal to get a crane and rush to the scene of the accident.

"2. Upon arriving at the scene of the wreck, the men observed that the native was pinned in the truck by his arm, which was between the cab and the door, which was in turn wedged against a tree. They realized that a little carelessness or false movements on their part, thereby causing the truck to move in any way but upward and

Rachel Morton Pupil Recital On Monday Evening

Rachel Morton will present eleven of her pupils, with Evelyn Nidever Hildebrand as accompanist in her annual recital to be held at the Playhouse on next Monday evening, June 26, at 8:30 o'clock. There is no admission charge and all interested in student singing are cordially invited to attend.

The youngest singer, Eva Lou Lippi, is ten years of age; Laurel Dell Hildebrand is twelve and Robert Jensen is fifteen. There are two Carmel business men among the singers: Eben Whittlesey, bass, and Carl Bensberg, baritone. Four army wives appear on the program; Mrs. Babcock's husband, Col. C. Stanton Babcock, is on General Marshall's staff; Major Forrest William, a doctor, has seen two and a half years in New Guinea; Mrs. Lodato's husband has been for nearly two years in Sicily; Mrs. Fassio's husband has just gone overseas. Pfc Cleo Goodman Commended For Rescue Work the same time outward, would result in severing the native's arm, with possibly fatal results. There was also danger that the weight of the truck, pulling down on the crane, would pull it into the ditch, therefore the crane was set semi-parallel with the road and blocked for heavy lifting. The men cleared everyone out of danger while they themselves were in danger of the truck and crane both rolling over upon them. The vehicle was rigged in such a manner that it could be lifted both upward and outward, thereby releasing the native pinned in the truck without further injury.

"3. From the moment of the arrival of the crane at the scene of the accident to the time the vehicle was righted approximately 15 minutes time elapsed, during which the above actions were accomplished.

"4 Considering the time lapse, the deftness in which the situation had to be handled, and the expertness in which the enlisted men evercised, shows clearly their efficiency under such conditions, and they are to be highly commended for their alertness, aggressiveness and complete lack of thought for their own danger in such an act above and beyond their call of duty."

Carmel-Monterey Lions Clubs To Mix At Softball

The Monterey Lions Club has accepted the challenge of the Carmel Lions to a soft ball game to be played on the Carmel High School athletic field at a date to be set later, it was announced at the local club's dinner meeting Tuesday night. It was also announced that next Tuesday is to be Carmel Lions Club bond day.

Entertainment for the meeting was provided by Sgt. Gordon Ayers with a monologue entitled Adventures While Riding on a Subway.

Guests for the evening were Carl Rohr, Frank Murphy, Derek Rayne, Johnny Tanous, the latter on leave from Fort Custer, Michigan.

Harpist, Baritone For M.A.C. Concert

The Musical Arts Society is reminding all members and their friends that an unusual program is being given Sunday, June 25, at 8:30 p. m., in the Music Room of the Carmel High School.

Yvonne La Mothe, noted harpist, is to be the guest artist. An interesting fact is that both Miss La Mothe and her harp survived the fatal bombing of Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941. Sharing the program is Mr. Carl Bensberg, well known baritone, accompanied by Mr. Frank McClain, pianist of note in radio and concert.

A highlight of the program will be a group of songs accompanied by harp and piano.

Hilton Scott In Hospital With Broken Shoulder

Twelve-year-old Hilton Scott, junior puppeteer in the marionette company of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, is spending ten days in the Peninsula Community hospital, under treatment for a fractured shoulder.

Young Hilton's injury was sustained last Monday afternoon as a result of a playful tussle with a comrade on Carmel beach, and according to the last report, is healing in a satisfactory manner.

Peninsula Division Honored At Launching

Trailblazing has long been a tradition on land with the famed 70th Infantry Division. Saturday, June 10, the trailblazing insignia of the 70th Division went to sea on the broad bow of the SS Trailblazer, launched as the first ship of the American Flag Fleet in World War II to be named for an Army Division.

The launching took place at Swan Island Shipyards with an impressive ceremony in which troops of the division took part.

The 70th Division is under the training leadership of the III Corps, which is at present stationed at the Presidio of Monterey, under the command of Major General John Millikin. Many of its officers have their homes in Carmel.

Alison Stilwell To Give Talk On Life In Peiping

One of the most interesting events of the season is to be the lecture given by Miss Alison Stilwell on Sunday, July 3, 2:30 p. m. at Sunset Auditorium. She will talk on a subject well known to her, "Life in Peiping," including glimpses into some of the unusual customs, traditions, and ceremonies. Alison was born in Peiping, and has spent several years there. She last returned in 1939, upon completion of her father's (the famous Vinegar Joe Stilwell) tour of duty as Military Attache. While in Peiping this last time she transferred her affections from oil painting to the fascinating subject of Chinese painting, and was one of Prince P'u Ju's most promising pupils. Since her return to this country she has proven herself worthy of his praise, as she has won much fame with her authentic paintings of the land of her birth. In the lobby of Sunset Auditorium, where she will give her talk, there will be on exhibition some of her finest works of art.

This affair is being sponsored by the Daughters of the U. S. Army, Fort Ord Chapter, of which Miss Stilwell is herself an active member. Their welfare fund will receive the proceeds from the ticket sales, and with this they will continue the excellent work they have accomplished on the Peninsula. This includes a regular contribution to the Service Wives' Center, donations to the Red Cross, serums for the children at the Presidio Hospital's Outpatient Clinic, and the purchase of several pieces of equipment badly needed by the hospital itself.

Besides the lecture and the exhibition of paintings, there will also be a showing of some of Miss Stilwell's Chinese costumes, modeled by some of the Army Daughters.

Tickets may be purchased at the Service Wives' Center in Pine Inn.

Farewell Party At First Theatre For Gerita Hanna

The last of a series of farewell parties for Mrs. Gerita Hanna was given by the Troupers of the Gold Coast at the First Theatre, Monterey following the June 4 performance of "After Dark." Gerry, as she is affectionately known by the Troupers, played her last show that night in her official capacity as pianist of the Gold Coast shows. Her loss will be deeply felt. Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous say that her brilliant, sure playing has been a great addition to the steadily rising standard of the First Theatre productions.

Like all of the Trouper after-theatre affairs, last Sunday's party was held in the old bar-room of the First Theatre, where the bar which in Jack Swan's day flowed with strong drink, was loaded with ice cream, cake, and coke. The Denny-Watrous Management presented Gerry with a beautiful scrap book, the traditional gift after 100 performances, which the "After Dark" cast autographed. As the First Theatre "Oscar" award, the also traditional bottle of Florida water was presented to the popular pianist, with good-bye songs and wishes for a speedy return.

and the city should finance the project from tax money so that the cost is distributed thinly over everyone. However, the arrangements were slow getting started this year and it is felt by the organizers that there is no time for working out a way of using public money for its support until next year. Therefore, contributions are asked, and it is hoped the response will be generous. —Wilma Cook.

Judge Kinsell Now Collector Of Quills As Well As Of Quips

Since Judge Dudley Kinsell presented the Carmel post office lobby with a box of pen points for Christmas, and did an article for The Pine Cone Cymbal on his gleanings in literature on the subject of the Pen, he has not only become an authority on pens, but as of Tuesday, June 29, a collector as well.

First items in the Kinsell collection are three gull quills found on Point Lobos, cut and presented to the Judge by City Clerk Peter Mawdsley. Accompanying the pens was a document from the city clerk proving that the quills are not pretty trifles but actual pens that can do a job of writing.

Under a very handsome line of broad, Old English lettering, "Carmel, Calif." appears in fine, decorative, spencerian script the following:

"This writing was done with a 'gull' quill picked up on Sunday, June 17, 1944, on Gibson Beach, Point Lobos, and there and then cut with a pen-knife, by Peter Mawdsley. A separate quill, picked up at the same time, was used for the 'text' lettering at the head of this sheet, being cut square instead of pointed.

"Presented to Judge Dudley Kinsell in compliment to his whimsical writings on the subject of The Pen in the Pine Cone, three cut quills.

" 'Beneath the rule of men, entirely great
The pen is mightier than the sword.' "

Mrs. Kegg's Visit Reminds Old Timers Of Marionette Troupe

Old timers who remember with delight the days of the Kegg-Goldsmith Marionettes were happy last week to have a glimpse of Mrs. Mabel Kegg, here from San Francisco with her sister, Mrs. Julian Eisenbach for a brief stay at Colonial Terrace.

Mrs. Kegg and Mrs. Eisenbach are the grand-daughters of Carmel's pioneer builder, John Dickson, one of whose earliest houses was that of his son-in-law, Joseph W. Hand, on San Carlos street, He also built the Thomas V. Cator Studio at Lopez and Fourth, now belonging to Ida Gregory Scott. His daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Tretheway, now 85, makes her home with Mrs. Eisenbach in San Francisco.

The Kegg-Goldsmith Marionette company which was composed of the late George Kegg, artist protegee of Richard Partington, who carved the puppets, his wife, Mabel Kegg, who costumed them and arranged the music, and Fannie Goldsmith, who prepared the scripts. Miss Goldsmith is now in New York engaged in the writing of radio scripts.

Babette Fickert Opens Classes At Carmel Art Institute

Summer art classes for children were opened last Monday in the Green Room of the Carmel Playhouse by Miss Babette Fickert, talented member of the Carmel Art association who has been teaching art during the past winter at the Douglas School. Information regarding admission to these afternoon classes may be obtained through Mrs. Patricia Cunningham, director of the Carmel Art Institute, who is sponing the project.

Miss Fickert is a graduate of Scripps College and worked for five years under Millard Sheets. She studied sculpture with Stewart Albert and was Paul Manship's assistant on the execution of his Radio City figures. Before coming to teach in the Douglas School, she supervised art classes in a Japanese re-location center in Arizona. Miss Fickert is spending the summer in Carmel with her mother, Mrs. Arthur Fickert and her grandmother, Mrs. F. D. Keeran.

5TH WAR LOAN

Back the Invasion...

To help insure victory
let's all buy more War Bonds than we've ever bought before!

Now the chips are really down! This is the critical stage of the toughest war Americans have ever been in. Nothing can be spared...in men, in equipment, in dollars.

We've sent our men to fight... to die, if need be. We've given our men the finest fighting equipment ...but every day they will need still more. So during this 5th War Loan Drive, we home-front Americans must back the attack by buying more War Bonds than we've ever bought before!

Here at Standard, employees by voluntary subscription have invested more than 10 million dollars in War Bonds since the start of the war . . . and to help insure victory we're daily buying more and more!

Sgt. Strasburger, Carmel Graduate, Writes From England To Congratulate Students On Establishing "The Club"

remember, and probably will be long after the kindergarden class at Sunset is on its way to college or work. Up 'til now the out-let for this urge has been confined to special occasions — school dances and house parties; the rest of the time it was a show and then hanging around the streets after that milk shake at Walts. I remember just how boring that custom could be. With gas rationing, even "mechanized hair and hound" must be out, and I sometimes wonder if Earl Wermuth and the other "cops" are happy about it or bored from the lack of those crazy chases which usually cost one or two of us our licenses for from 30 to 90 days.

So in closing, I say to those young men and women who worked for the club house, have a good time and keep your interest high, for the sake of yourselves and those who will follow you through Carmel Hi. To the citizens who have made this club possible through your time and donations, I say on behalf of myself and many Carmel graduates like me, scattered over the globe, thanks for the fulfillment of one of our most cherished hopes; keep that club going. Whatever you put into it in time and contributions will be well worth the dividends in pleasure that will be derived by those who frequent it. And while I hate to dwell on the subject of juvenile delinquency and morality, I'm sure that what ever you might do for the club will have more than a little bearing on the character development of these future Carmel citizens.

I am one of many who has also deposited several quarters in the Monterey Ice house and have not received anything in exchange.

I am a soldier's wife and handicapped as we are living under crowded war conditions and are not fortunate enough to have an electric ice box to furnish our ice, but that we cannot "gripe" about. But after going to the ice house to "tote" our ice home, we certainly should have something in exchange for our quarters, and we believe as you do, Why can't something be done about it? —C. B.

Monday Evening.

Dear Editor:

Some one beat me to the punch. But it was not exactly the kind of punch I had in mind. I refer to the No Excuse Now Department that was started in last week's issue of The Pine Cone. This is a splendid idea and I hope everyone will cut out the list and write as many letters as they can.

What I have in mind is, I believe, even more important, but I do not know if it can be done or who will do it. I would like to see the names and addresses of boys in the service whom no one is writing to so we can step in and fill the gap. Who knows how to get these names? Who will get them? I know The Pine Cone will be glad to print them.

Sincerely yours,
Bernard Rowntree.

Dear Jim:
Sorry this letter is late, but I'm up to my ears in the 5th War Loan Drive.
As head of the town's committee, I'm busy almost every waking moment selling bonds. This is, by all odds, the most critical period of the war. Everything is at stake — everything. (As if I needed to tell you that.) Our quota calls for two billion dollars more in this loan than the last — everyone's got to buy two or three times more than he's ever bought before — if things are to go as we solemnly pray they should.
Thank God most of the people I talk to seem to realize the critical need. They do without things they actually need in order to plunk down another hundred or two. I guess they feel as I do. With a man you love over there, the least you can do is your utmost.
I want you to know, Jim, that the folks here at home are with you — and their money is fighting with you — every last dollar they can scrape up. Mother and I send love.
Dad.

8 New Teachers On High School, 1 On Sunset Roster

With the hiring of Miss Nina Cornwall, Santa Maria, to teach commercial subjects and journalism next year, the teacher roster of the High School is complete Superintendent J. W. Getsinger said this week.

Miss Cornwall, a graduate of the University of California, has had practical experience in her subject as she has held the position of secretary at the Santa Maria High School and at the Hancock Flying School.

Eight other new teachers have been hired for next school term, among them Howard Byrne, with five years' teaching experience in the Merced schools, who will have charge of woodwork, auto mechanics, driver education and mechanical drawing classes at the High School, relieving Ernest Calley so that he can devote more time to Sunset and adult school shop courses. Mr. Byrne is expected to arrive here the first of September with his wife and two children.

Another new teacher is Miss Betty James from San Jose, who has been teaching at Glenn County High School, Willows, this winter. She will be in charge of girls' physical education at the High School, and will conduct 'teen age social dancing classes.

John H. Westover, from La Grande, Oregon has been engaged to teach mathematics classes at the High School next fall and to take over the principalship at adult school as Frank L. McClain is to be vice principal at the High School. Mr. Westover has been teaching physics in the army air corps program. He will arrive about September 1 with his wife and family, with the exception of the son who is serving in the army.

Miss Edith James, a Stanford graduate, who has been teaching in San Jose for the past six months, is to be vocal music teacher for both Sunset and the High School. Alvin L. Learned will be the new orchestra director. J. R. McKillop, Monterey, will teach Spanish and Mrs. Flora Roberts, who has been teaching at Ukiah, has been hired to teach English here next fall.

One new teacher has been engaged to supplement the teaching staff at Sunset, Mrs. F. S. Ruth, whose husband teaches life sciences at Pacific Grove High School.

Marie F. Jones

The many Carmel friends made by Mrs. Marie Franziska Jones since she came here eight years ago to make her home near her son-in-law and daughter, Commander Herbert M. Tolfree, U. S. Navy Medical Corps, Ret. and Mrs. Tolfree, will be saddened to learn of her death on Monday evening, June 19, in a Santa Cruz hospital where she has been confined by illness for the past eight months.

Mrs. Jones was born in Paris, in 1856, a descendent on the maternal side of the celebrated Madame de Stael and one of a family containing distinguished members of the Russian diplomatic corps. As a child of nine she was brought by her parents to New York where she lived until her father's death, after which she and her mother moved to Cleveland. Here her marriage to the late Orville Jones took place, and she continued to make Cleveland her home until 1918 when following the death of her husband she came to Oakland, California, where Commander and Mrs. Tolfree were then residing. In 1934 they established their permanent home in Carmel on Shafter Way, Hatton Fields, and after she had visited them here, Mrs. Jones decided to become a Carmel resident herself.

Endowed with unusual gifts of personality, a keen wit, an inventive mind and an absorbing love for all forms of beauty, Mrs. Jones kept throughout all of her eighty-eight years her vital interest in humanity, taking especial delight in fostering, both materially and spiritually, the careers of talented young artists. An accomplished musician herself, and able to speak French, German and Italian with fluency, Mrs. Jones' part in the cultural life about her was never an inactive one. In Carmel she was a valued member of the Carmel Music association, the Art association and the Woman's club. To the end of her long and interesting life her slogan was, "Think! Study and Improve Yourself."

Following the funeral services and cremation Monday afternoon in Santa Cruz, the remains were sent to Cleveland to be interred, in accordance with her request, beside those of her mother.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Pauline Jones Tolfree, other surviving members of the family are a son, Commander J. Douglas Jones, U. S. N., now on duty in Washington, D. C., and two granddaughters: Miss Patricia Jones and Mrs. Eleanor Jones Loomis.

"Janie" Comedy Of Youth, Plays Tuesday Evening In Salinas

Youth will have its fling, and adolescents will have the edge, when Brock Pemberton brings his successful comedy, "Janie," featuring the petite movie star, Edith Fellows, in the title role, to the Salinas Union High School Auditorium, June 27, Tuesday evening only. Tickets are on sale at Gadsby's Music Co., Salinas and Abinante Music Store, Monterey.

"Janie," which kept New Yorkers in laughs for 642 performances, is a comedy about the amusing and amazing pranks of adolescents. The pretty little junior misses and their uniformed beaux put their elders in their places in Brock Pemberton's production about the bobbysock set.

The large New York cast will include such stage favorites as Linda Watkins, Howard St. John, Nancy Cushman, Ben Lackland, Bill Thomson, Frank Wilson, Phyllis DeBus, Vicki Thomas, William Sharon, and Paul Foley.

ARRIVAL—

It was a choice and lovely moment, this arrival in Payeete. From a vantage point on the ship, I could see the island peak looming above the horizon, misty blue and jagged. As the ship drew closer, one could see the reef, a line of coral rising just above the surface of the sea. The great rolling combers from the outer Pacific crashed and broke against it with tumultuous plumes of spray. The rising sun shone upon the rusted spire of the small, white painted Catholic church in Papeete. It also sent its rays fanwise beyond the Island peaks. I could smell the pungent scent of oranges and vanilla, and a fragrant odour which I was later to know as that of the flower, the tropical tube rose, "Tiari-Tahiti."

PICNIC TO GAUGUIN'S CAVE—

Mist was rising off the lagoon and it was morning. Six of us said, "We will go off to the cavern on the end of the peninsula and have a picnic." It is the same cavern into which Gauguin had gone once in a previous century. He tells of it in his "Intimate Journals."

Emile, a young French Tahitian, Ena, Keable's mistress, two little big-bosomed girls with dark streaming hair, and a fine old man from Southern California made our party.

We secured a canoe belonging to Mauu, the obese chieftain living on his lagoon-side estate at Papiari. The canoe, or warring perogue, could easily hold all six. I could see the blue and mist shrouded peaks of the end of the peninsula where we were bound. As a bowl filled with ice, so calm was the lagoon. Though, of course, it was warm and balmy, for the island was Tahiti.

We sailed across the coral filled blue depths of the lagoon, through a break in the reef, out into the Pacific. It was rougher going there. Indeed, we reached a point when, under the impact of a comber, the outrigger of the warring perogue lifted high into the air. The girls and Ena shrieked prettily, while the men threw themselves to the outrigger side.

Then we slid into a coral filled lagoon. I could see green mullet down below, and a multitude of lemon yellow angel fish like celestial butterflies, flitting through the lavender and ultramarine blue branches of the coral bushes in the cerulean depths below. Serenity and peace prevailed. But as we were passing a post rammed into a clump of coral, a hundred feet off to the starboard, Emile, who had brought his shot gun with him, raised it and let fire at a white sea fowl perched on the top of the post.

The gull fell silently into the calm water. We, with the exception of Emile, were shocked to the core of our being. The peace and humanity, the joy and the profound innocence of nature no longer enveloped us as we passed across the glassy water.

Soon we were within sight of the river's mouth. Oranges and coconuts were tumbling out into the salt water of the lagoon. It had rained, doubtless a cloudburst, in the lofty peaks at the river's source.

Natives on the shore were gathering up armloads of coconuts and oranges, and were gleefully shouting and laughing. Our two little big-bosomed girls were greeted as long lost kin by some of the natives. It appeared that they had only gone the week before to Papiari to look for husbands.

Forming a miniature safari, we began to follow the trail to the cavern. This trail wound through groves of mapi trees and among the banana and orange trees. Butterflies, abnormally huge and colored with rare beauty, fluttered about.

POETRY

THE MORNING-GLORY VINES

The morning-glory vines were closeted with coolness,
In the young, blazing town where dwelt my lizard youth;
And the braided, kindly men beneath their toasted silence
Counted out the distance with lips succinctly mute.

Oh, always when I could I hollowed out the rhubarb,
Sucking out the bitter and piping to a drum,
For both sides of the road held cottonwoods like thunder,
And salamander shadows secret as a plum!

—KATHRYNE E. SCOVILLE

CARMEL

Hear the beat of the city!
Her metronome never stops;
Every breath is measured.
Hers is a merciless baton—
Even the street corners keep time.
And the shriek of wheels on the rails!—
The herding of five o'clock cars!
The city stampedes
And I choke in its dust—
Smart for a Carmel morning
With its debating birds,
Coins of sycamore leaves,
And triangles of blue through the leaves—
For the candelabra of her midnight sky
With tapers of pines,
And an organ surf—
The cathedral of Carmel's night.

—DOROTHY LOOSLEY.

ALWAYS YOU BEAR THE DAWN FRAGRANCE

The bell of a linnet is ringing
Within the pale pink filagree
Of the almond tree;
You step from your shadowy garden
With dew washed buds in your hand,
Out through the gate of the morning,
Into an arid land.

On the road's burning glare
Under the flaming torch of the day,
You are weighted with weariness,
Still, you bear the dawn fragrance;
Beneath the soft dark of your hair
Your eyes reflect the dawn candles,
Until Night brings you a mantle of dream,
And the amulet of a star!

MONICA TYLER BROWN.

FLIGHT

Lift hills with your eyes.
See the bird with the shot breast
Split the flower-blue skies.
Hear the wind hound west.

Go at once the wing-way.
See smoke divide the migrant flock.
Where night parts the day,
A single star moves the eagle rock.

—FRONA LANE.

REVIEWS

The cavern appeared. It was like looking down into the wide open slit of an enormous envelope made of earth. Big drops fell from the roof and landed on our noses. The girls refused to swim out into the black water. The men, with the exception of Emile, all rolled off their clothes and struck out. I swam the farthest.

Bats whirred in the darkness above me. Suddenly, the water nearby swirled strangely. My foot struck a rock and, reaching up, I took the flashlight tied in a pareau on my head. I was on the far shore. Here I could perceive the engraved characters depicting the insignia of Tahitians, perhaps of long ago. They had a very aged appearance.

I heard another swirling sound in the water. I used the flashlight. An enormous eel coiled its length before my eyes. He was much in my mind as I swam the hundred yards through this ice cold underground lake to regain the shore.

When I attained the far shore, all were gone but Ena. We walked down the lush jungle trail together, out into the hot sunshine. Our eyes had grown accustomed to the cavern's dark. A distant booming sound came to our ears. It was Emile, dynamiting a pool in the river.

A GOD COMES INTO BEING—

Tahiti is an isle upon which live excessively superstitious natives.

I had the habit—and it was a good one, provocative of much treasure of a mild sort—of idly striding up and down the second beach of Tahiti, that of Hittia. A river flowed into the lagoon at either end of the beach. The river nearest the house of Paul and Lily Enghdal, where I lived, had eels in the sand of its banks. One could swim under water, thrust an arm into the watery sand of the bank and by closing the hand, clutch a fistful of six inch long eels. This was an amusing pastime. However, walking on the beach was better.

One day while thus walking, I came upon the trunk of a small tree. In its way it was suggestive of a human figure. There was the torso and two legs akimbo, formed by a fork. I took this piece of mapi wood to my quarters and began to work with my chisels. Soon, with not too much effort, I had created a semi-human appearing figure. Its arms, of flat bas relief across the front, indicated a stomach ailment. In other words, I had made a "tiki," which is Tahitian for "god." It was a god whose prime function could be called that of "warding off stomach ache."

Having finished the god, I carried him across the river and laid him on the sill of the house of my novelist friend, Robert Keable. Keable, as I heard later, was delighted with the acquisition. He apparently saw its potentialities. He stood it at the estate entrance. It remained there for several months.

Now, here is the heart of the tale. Every morning that came saw fresh flowers and succulent fruit placed in a small circle about the erect wooden god. The natives, of their own volition, had concluded that here indeed was a pretext for fruity libation. The wooden god began to be called the "Stomach Ache Tiki." The natives attributed to it enormous curative powers which indeed it must have had. Its fame spread.

Later, when my friend Keable died, and his estate was divided (by a kin of the man who collected the insurance on the house of Paul Gauguin, after burning it because as he said, the walls were covered with valueless immoral murals) the wooden god which I had whacked out in Hittia, was purchased by a pompous gentleman from Boston. It was sold under a label which indicated not only rare suggestively divine powers of an obscure sort, but also incredible antiquity. Now the Tiki, or god, as one may choose to call it, occupies a place of honour somewhere in that still New England Gothic land where mild mannered inhabitants may rub it and be cured of their local dyspepsia.

What news will Gen. Eisenhower get from us?

You know now what we've heard from him.

We've heard that Eisenhower and his Americans have hurled themselves like a thunderbolt against the bristling defenses of Hitler's Wehrmacht!

We've heard that they are battering and smashing at our foe—sparing neither steel nor sweat nor blood in one final, furious assault that marks the supreme military effort of this War!

And what news do Eisenhower and his men expect from us?

Men and women of America—what the Invasion is to our fighting men, the 5th War Loan is to us at home!

For us, as well as for them, this is the crisis—the time for tremendous, overwhelming effort! Make no mistake! The 5th War Loan is the biggest, most vitally important financial effort of this whole War!

If the 5th War Loan is to succeed, each one of us must do more than ever before—must buy double . . . yes, triple . . . the Bonds we bought last time.

Our men expect to hear that we are buying double—that we are matching their sacrifice as best we can—that the American nation, soldiers and civilians together, is making one gigantic effort to win this War!

That's the news our men expect to hear from us.

Will you personally see that they get it?

And here are 5 more reasons for buying Extra Bonds in the 5th!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

yard Valley, full of sparkling light and dark and almost oppressive all-over pattern. He achieves movement through color and light vibration. Paul Whitman's calm interior of a blacksmith shop has the quality of simplicity and repose. The color is low in key but the washes are clear and transparent, a most successful ombination. Being a typical Carmel scene gives it added appeal.

Next come three Roy Martins flanked by two William Watts. The Martins have this artist's usual vigor and clarity, the attributes that have made him one of our foremost water colorists, and promise the achievement of even greature stature in even wider fields of art activity. Martin's paintings make a strong contrast to William Watts' totally different style. The latter is so purely emotional in expression, all his forms twist and writhe, and are whipped into added unrest by his semi-impressionist technique of splashing spots of color together into a vibrating mass of pigment. He loves color for its own sake and interprets nature according to his turbulent vision.

Next come the Moys with another Bill Irwin, and then a strange, other-worldly, decorative painting by Ferdinand Burgdorff. He calls it Lagoon Twilight and assembles pinks, grays, and lavenders in a daringly symmetrical design. Next to this, Schwartz's conventional moon-lit mission seems all the more conservative. It is handled with a great deal of skill in giving the effect of cloudy moonlight.

The next group has two Sam Colburns, two M. de Neale Morgans, two Margaret Levicks and a John O'Shea. Margaret Levick's Hollyhocks is a very stunning portrait of this luscious flower, both in color and design, and her picture of Colton Hall is also in the category of a portrait because it so ably depicts all of the qualities we associate with this historic building.

M. de Neale Morgan's observation of strong color contrasts in nature is boldly recorded in her combination tempera and pastel paintings of typical California Springtime incidents. As landscape colors so vividly stand out after rain, so do M. de Neale Morgan's fields and flowering trees. Those who like verisimilitude to natural effects will find it here.

Sam Colburn's shimmering color and transparent light effects are again seen in his two landscapes with buildings. He has used simplicity of means to produce a very definite mood in both of them. His skies are particularly pleasing, the fluffy clouds floating in a fathomless blue. Against these skies, his angular structures have a quaint, sturdy character that is admirably achieved.

John O'Shea's small Taxco, Marjory Pegram's portrait sketch and Phil Nesbitt's lovely costume designs complete the show. It will be open to the pubic every day except Monday from two to five in the afternoons, and will be up until the thirteenth of next month.

One That Won't Get To The Lord Mayor's Banquet

For those Carmelites who weren't able to get down town this week end, also for out of town subscribers or those away from home on vacation, The Pine Cone wishes to make mention of the mounted Giant Turtle head with a world-weary expression in Billy Burke's hardware store window on Dolores Street.

According to the placard which we persuaded Billy Burke to take out of his window so we could bring it to The Pine Cone office and copy it directly onto the typewriter without having to do a pencil transcript on Dolores Street, it is the head of a "TURTLE FROM ASCENSION ISLAND IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC. These turtles weigh, when fully grown, 500 lbs. and over, and reach an age in excess of 100 years. (Which probably accounts for the world-weary expression—Ed.) The shells measure five feet by three. No males are ever seen ashore; the females coming in only to lay their eggs. A female will lay about 300 eggs a season in three or four nests two feet deep and eight to ten feet across, which she digs in the sand. The baby turtles hatch in two months, and make for the sea where every fish for miles around is waiting to eat them. Ascension Island formerly shipped 2500 turtles a year. One turtle is always sent to London each year for the Lord Mayor's banquet. The meat is green in color and tastes not unlike fresh veal. Presented to Officer Earl Wermuth by Col. P. J. Black, U. S. Army Forces, South Atlantic, Chief of Staff."

The placard doesn't make any mention of the little stuffed turtle beside the big mounted head, and considerably smaller, so that this Pine Cone operative was under the impression that it was a native turtle—native to Carmel, and put there for contrast—but Earl Wermuth, long time pal of Col. Black, says, no, it's a six month old specimen of the same species as the great-big-sad-weary-Ascension Island head, and that the "youngster" was a gift from Col. Black to Mr. Wermuth's son, Ray.

Both the head and the "youngster" were in Col. Black's kit of souvenirs when he was here on leave from duty in Recife, Brazil. He left Thursday week for Camp Aterbury, Indiana. The turtles appeared in Billy Burke's window Friday.

THE WALTER SCOTTS RETURN

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott with their two young sons, Hilton and John, returned to Carmel last Sunday, following a highly successful three months' tour with their marionette troupe which carried them from San Francisco north through Healdsburg and Santa Rosa to Sacramento, where there was a two weeks' showing of their new production, Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp. The Scotts plan to spend the summer in Carmel and are now domiciled in the Calley home for the school vacation period. Mr. Ernest Calley and his son, Douglas, left this week for their mountain home near Grass Valley.

McEntire, by Mr. Arnold Grimshaw, president of the Latter Day Saints church in Pacific Grove, Miss Verna McEntire became the bride of Pvt. Donald Ray Pitts, U. S. Army, now stationed at Fort Ord. The bride, attired in rose-colored jersey with hat and accessories of white and a corsage of white gardenias and pink rosebuds, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Howard Ricketson, the former Erma McEntire, of Fort Ord Village. Mrs. Ricketson wore a flowered jersey in lavender and white, with a corsage of white gardenias. Best man was Mr. Howard Ricketson.

The beautifully decorated wedding cake which was cut at the reception following the ceremony, was the fourth made by Mrs. Ricketson for members of her family, and topping it were the same tiny figures of a bride and groom which were used at each of the earlier weddings.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

"Prayer in War-Time" will be the sermon theme by Dr. James E. Crowther next Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. The intellectual difficulties about prayer are greatly multiplied in time of war. Is God more interested in the safety of me and mine than of him and his? On both sides of the fighting lines Christians are praying for victory; how can God answer the prayers of both? And thus the questions multiply. But there are answers that satisfy both mind and heart of those who truly say, "Lord, teach us to pray." Elinor Smith will play the following organ selections: "Invocation," Rossini; "Lament," Negro Spiritual; "Arioso," Handel; "Penitence," Rand; "Maestoso," Battazzo-Rossini. The Church Service begins at eleven. Visitors are cordially invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord." These words from Isaiah comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, June 26, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Christian Science."

Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," (Matt. 16: 16, 17, 18).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. . . . In other words, Jesus purposed founding his society, not on the personal Peter as a mortal, but on the God-power which lay behind Peter's confession of the true Messiah," (pp. 136, 138).

WARSHAWSKY SHOW

An exhibition of about thirty oil paintings by Abel G. Warshawsky are on Stanford University's Art Gallery walls until the third of July

In describing the work of the Monterey artist, Pedro DeLemos, Director of the Stanford Gallery says: "Warshawsky's work is full of virility and belongs to no school or movement. Despite the strength so evident in his technique his dominant note is that of fluidity. His rich coloring, added to the robust heartiness of his work, with his master craftsmanship produces art work of radiant sanity."

The Stanford Art Gallery is open every day of the week between 10 and 5 o'clock and no admission is charged.

RED CROSS NEWS

By HELEN A. FIELD

Over a year ago Mrs. Fred Godwin organized the work of the Surgical Dressings Unit of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross. Since March 1943 she has carried forward the work of that unit as its chairman. Now, because of ill health, she has found it necessary to resign as Chairman of Surgical Dressings. Her resignation takes effect on July first.

Of course the surgical dressings work goes on for there has been no time in history when there was such great need for dressings as the present, with our Armed Forces moving ahead on many fronts.

The new chairman, who will begin work on the first of July, is Mrs. A. M. Allan of Point Lobos. She plans to carry on where the retiring chairman leaves off and hopes to expand the work gradually to keep pace with the ever increasing need. To this end she hopes that more and more people will find time and inclination to become active in this important work.

The Junior Red Cross begins its summer production work on Tuesday, June 27 at one o'clock in room 15, The Home Making Room, at Sunset School. Girls from the sixth grade through High School are eligible for this work. Mrs. Horace Dormody, Chairman of Junior Red Cross for the Carmel Chapter, hopes that many of them will take part in the work for there is much to be done.

Mrs. Dormody and Mrs. Frank Timmons, Vice-Chairman, will take charge of the activities which will be in progress every Tuesday and Thursday throughout the summer from one until four o'clock.

There will be knitting to do—Afghan squares and toe socks; there will be sewing—making dolls, and stuffed animals from original patterns that Miss Berger has offered to design for the large consignment that has been requested for refugee children; there will be paper work—Christmas decorations which have to be shipped by September first.

It is not necessary to sign up ahead of time. Come Tuesday at one o'clock, as many of you as are interested in this worthwhile Red Cross Production Work—and if you have scraps of wool or gingham bring them with you.

Scientist And Artist Wife End Visit In Carmel

Mrs. Michael Doudoroff, who has been spending the past month in Carmel as the house guest of Mrs. Elsie Martinez and Miss Harriet Dean, left on Tuesday for Palo Alto where she plans to visit the parents of her husband, Professor Doudoroff of the bacteriology department of the University of California, before returning to her home in Berkeley. While in Carmel Mrs. Doudoroff, a talented watercolorist, painted two interiors of the Dean-Martinez home and one of the C. B. Van Niel house on Camino Real, discovering in the process an interesting and humorous technique which she plans to develop in further work at her own studio.

Professor Doudoroff accompanied his wife to Carmel and shared the first ten days of her visit during which he made a trip to Big Sur in a successful search for some specimens of the butterfly discovered by him several years ago and now bearing his name, which appears in a few spots in that region once in every two or three years. In addition to discovering this new butterfly, Prof. Doudoroff is credited along with two other University of California bacteriologists with the discovery of synthetic sugar.

Blanding-Wright Song Just Off Press

Don Blanding just received his author's copies of that truly splendid war song which was made from the lead poem of his most recent book, Pilot Bails Out, entitled "Soldier, What Did You See?," with powerful, poignant music by Norman Soreng Wright of Hollywood.

This song had its world premiere on the radio, October 24, 1943, when John Charles Thomas with a chorus of 150 voices sang it on Westinghouse hour, repeating it a month later by popular request.

In the song a soldier is asked, as all veterans are asked, "What did you see? What did you hear? What did you think? What did you pray?" The soldier answers with a stark honesty which leaves a haunting ache in the memory of those who hear the song.

The song is dedicated to our fighting forces all over the world. The Willis Music Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, agents for R. L. Huntzinger, Inc. of New York published the song, and are soon bringing out Quest by the same composer and author.
